

CAMDEN NEWS NOTES

** Camden's police spent two hours yesterday seeking a nurse who was supposed to have decamped with her infant charge. Mrs. Harry Schellberg, of 690 Woodland avenue, notified the police that a nurse had disappeared Thursday night with Mrs. Schellberg's two-year-old child. The police were still hunting when word was received that the nurse had returned, she having remained all night at the home of a friend.

** James Whipple, aged 22 years, and Miss Mary Saunders, aged 20 years, both of Mount Holly, were married by Justice Wright. They said they journeyed to Camden to escape their friends, who were preparing to play some fool tricks.

** Mrs. Frederick Bancroft, of Fall River, Mass., after coming up from Vineland yesterday, visited the waiting room at the Pennsylvania Railroad terminal in Camden, where somebody lifted her handbag. She told the police it contained a large sum of money, a diamond stickpin, a gold watch chain and a ticket for Lynn, Mass.

** Policeman Walter Hubbs, one of the remaining Democrats on the Camden police force, was to have been given a hearing before the Police Committee of City Council last night on several charges, but, owing to the absence of witnesses, the case was postponed.

** Mayor Ellis has received a unique letter from Quibah, West Africa, in which a man, who signs himself as Lord Cephas Leonard Acolatse, asks the Mayor to give him financial aid to reach the United States. It concludes: "All my faculty ordained by the great I Am then, he, the great Monumental statue of yours adding you up to the number of men who never die."
