

CAMDEN AT A GLANCE

While freight riding to return to Brooklyn to see his sweetheart, Charles E. Morris, of that place, was arrested yesterday. Recorder Stackhouse quickly liberated him.

A true bill is reported to have been returned by the grand jury yesterday against Enrico Di Gregorio, the Italian who shot and killed Eugenio Parilla, his wife's alleged paramour. Di Gregorio is still at large.

John Swift, of 68 Lansdowne avenue, and Raymond Burk, of 17 South Second street, Philadelphia, who went thirty miles an hour on their motorcycles along Haddon avenue, being overhauled by Motorcycle Policeman Frost, paid fines of $10 each before the Recorder yesterday.

For acting suspiciously and having a loaded revolver in his pocket Oreste Palocha, aged 27 years, of Bridgeton was given three months in jail by the Recorder.

Claiming he only supplied his boarders, Aless Di Carlo, of 442 Pine street, was held in $500 bail for court by the Recorder on a charge of selling liquor on Sunday. He and thirteen men were arrested by Captain Stapler and a squad of officers, several cases of beer being confiscated.

Last evening, at the residence of the bride's brother, 622 Carman street Miss Linda B. Patton became the bride of William C. Kean of Woodbury, Rev. Holmes F. Gravit, of the First M. E. Church, officiating. The bride and groom after a honeymoon trip will make their home at Pitman.

Camden City Council last night instructed the City Solicitor to take up with the Public Utility Commission the complaints against the rerouting of the car service as carried out by the Public Service Railway Company. Petitions declared that the crosstown trolley traffic is more congested than ever.