Paragraphs of Interest in Camden County and Vicinity.

The new bank at Mountestown will be called the "Mountestown National." The directors having decided to change the name "Chester National," which was first adopted.

William C. Sloan, of Atco, announced himself, yesterday, as a candidate for County Clerk on the Republican ticket.

John Walsh, of Front and Erie streets, was held in $500 bail by Justice Schmitze yesterday for cruelty, in beating Howard Steer, a lad, with a pair of ice tongs.

The various committees of Gloucester City Council have been changed from five to seven members. This was brought about by the Democratic adherents of William Thompson.

Daniel Hurley, a saloon keeper, at Seventh and Chestnut streets, has been held for trial at court charged with cruel treatment toward his wife and mother-in-law.

H. Miller, aged twenty-seven, of Delaware township, Camden county, was sent to jail by Mayor Bradshaw yesterday for trial, charged by his father with grand larceny, in selling a load of hay after being warned by the parent not to do so. In defiance of instructions, it is alleged, the son took the hay from the barn and was trying to dispose of it at the hay market when arrested.

Paul Sands, his two sons and Frederick Davis were held to bail by Justice Schmitze in the sum of $500 each for trial, charged by William Lieber, a farmer, from Marlton, with conspiracy. Lieber alleges he sold a horse to Davis, who paid him a certain portion and gave a note for the balance, claiming he owned sufficient collateral to cover it. His assertions, it is charged, were sanctioned by the Sands. It was afterwards alleged the note was worthless. The horse, in the meantime, was sold to Freeholder Smith for considerable less than its value, hence the suit.

The United States lighthouse tender Madrono, which was built for the United States Government by John H. Dialogue, will be ready for sailing next week. A tug ninety-two feet long, nineteen feet beam and ten feet depth of hold, to be called the Chicago, and built for Messrs. A. Booth & Sons, Baltimore, Md., has been finished by this firm, and will soon be ready for sea.

A slight fire last evening destroyed a portion of Gilbert Hyers' carpenter shop at Reese and Spruce streets, Sixth ward.

John Hall, an employee at Starr's iron works, received a crushed hand while moving pipes yesterday afternoon.

Joseph Heavens, of the Eighth ward, for assaulting his wife, was committed to the county prison by Justice Laird yesterday.

Word was received at police headquarters, Camden, last evening, notifying the officers to be on the lookout for Wm. O. Gatzmer, a prominent young man of Burlington county, who left the residence of Dr. Bradner, at Burlington, on Thursday morning, to visit Capt. A. B. Frazer, superintendent of the Camden and Philadelphia Ferry Company. It is feared Mr. Gatzmer's mind has been affected from too close attention to his studies. He was perfecting himself for a civil engineer and had also taken up astronomy.

The death of Margaret Kealey at Kirkwood, Camden county, from congestion of the brain, superinduced by acute cholera morbus, was the cause of sensational rumors yesterday. The young lady's illness and death were fully chronicled in THE INQUIRER. Coroner Heale, who held a view and gave a certificate of death as above, stated that he believed, from the symptoms, that death resulted from cholera. He would not say positively that this was the case. He intended making a microscopical examination. The doctor who attended the patient scouted the idea of cholera, and says that death was due to congestion of the brain, brought on by cholera morbus. Were the case one to give alarm, the body would not have been sent to Philadelphia. The funeral takes place this morning from her cousin's residence, No. 1231 South Seventeenth street, to proceed to Salem, N. J.
